Dr. Gibson Takes as Second Wife His Housekeeper, Mrs. Hale, April 49

Trapped up on pillows as his sick bed, where he has lain for the past thirteen weeks, Dr. Arthur Gibson, seventy-one years old, and one of the best known physicians in Somerville, was married to his housekeeper, Mrs. Margaret Hale, twenty-two years his junior.

The ceremony was performed in the bedroom of the doctor's home, No. 23 Bow street, Somerville, in the presence of friends of the couple. The Rev. Charles F. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Irving Hill, and chaplain of Somerville Post 13 of the American Legion, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Hale had been the doctor's housekeeper for several years. The doctor's first wife, who was a sister of Mrs. George C. Foster, wife of a former Mayor of Somerville, died twenty years ago.

Among those present at the wedding was the bride's brother, Dr. M. Coffin of Melrose. The doctor was born in Shrewsbury, Vt., and has been a practicing physician in the Union square section of Somerville for the last thirty years.

The bride, who was married twice before, was born in Charlestown. Dr. Gibson has been seriously ill since his wife's death in December.

The Superior Court has ordered judgment for Mary A. W. Keane to a suit brought against her by Mrs. M. Brennan, administratrix of John Brennan.

A jury in the Superior Court awarded Mrs. Brennan $2500 for the death of her husband, but the decision of the full court makes the verdict void.

Brennan, a police officer, was found unconscious July 6, 1918, outside a building owned by the defendant at No. 303 West street, Roxbury, and died of the injuries. The jury found that the defendant was negligent.

Advocates of licensing a moving picture theatre in Winchester were the first opponents of the hot fighting over the proposal, when the annual town meeting voted to license the town hall at 6 o'clock today.

Those in favor of licensing the theatre have been defeated by the opponents several times and it was only by the most strenuous struggle today that they succeeded in having the matter submitted to the voters.

COOLIDGE SEES SOUTH TURNING TO G. O. P. FOLD

Sentiment Rapidly Changing: He Declares; Will Spend Summer in Northampton

Washington, March 7.—Vice-President Coolidge sees the time when the entire South will enter the Republican fold. He made this statement to Universal Service today in the first interview he has granted since his induction into office.

"Understand," he said, "I do not expect to move about at all. There is still the remnant of an unrelenting fear of negro domination which certain class of politicians keep stirred up for their own purposes. When this feeling dies out, the South will be predominantly Republican."

"I never spoke to larger audiences or enjoyed more courteous treatment during the campaign than I did during my tour of the South. In Richmond, where President Taft, in spite of his personal popularity, once mustered an audience of scarcely 800, an enthusiastic audience of at least 2,000 persons gathered to hear me speak."

Why? Pet Peeves of Politician People

WHY wasn't I kidnapped and taken into Canada like Editor Thirney?

WHY should former cabinet officials be allowed to move about in private autos and the rest of us have no chance of going to the "hoosier" if we so much as hint that we have a private stock?

WHY are we expected to be the "silent sex" when they talk more to women?

WHY do the people of Parkton road, by hammering the house instead of rage, make the place sound like a boiler factory?

21 BAY STATE TOWNS HOLD ELECTIONS

Women Join in Voting for All Officers for First Time and Seek Positions

Annual elections were held in 21 Massachusetts towns today, with women participating in the election of all town officers for the first time. There were also a number of women candidates, and as many of elections were featured by contests between women.

Desham's election had for the first time two women contesting for offices other than that of public library trustee. Mrs. Emma R. Bestwick was running with five men, three to be elected. Another contest was for overseer of the poor between Miss Anna Miller and J. Henry May.

CONTESTS IN ARLINGTON. In Winthrop the polls opened at 8 a. m. and will close at 6 p. m. There were seven candidates for the three positions for members of the Board of selectmen, as follows: Harry S. Wright, the present chairman; Lucille B. Griffin, Susan Remby, Timothy Mahoney, and Virginia R. Read. William M. Jenkins and William J. March, Mrs. Curtis Carpenter is opposing Frank F. Cook for selectman.

Mercury Drops After Boston Warm Spell

King Winter is not dead. Shifting his old ally, the wind, to the northeast near early today, he sent down a blast from Canada that cooled his old antagonist, high temperature, to retreat five degrees in one hour.

The root was complete, two more notices on the thermometer being lost in the succeeding thirty minutes. Weather Observer Smith, looking on impartially, predicted that efforts of the mercury to recoup its losses would be unsuccessful for forty-eight hours at least. His forecast was a drop below freezing by tonight.

Occasional rains today and tomorrow also are likely. This condition is general throughout the State. Boston with a temperature of 43 was the warmest spot in New England at 8 a. m. today.

MAINTAIN RESTRICTIONS ON LIQUOR

New Administration's Attitude on Knotty Problems Awaited With Interest

Washington, March 7.—The new administration is called upon to decide whether or not the present regulations against liquor are to be strengthened. The attitude of the newcomers is awaited with interest in view of the many knotty problems that surround the enforcement of the Volstead act.

Regulations as drafted by prohibition officials would limit manufacture to the sale of their own produce and forbid them to dispose of other manufacturers containing alcohol. This would practically limit the distribution of liquor to wholesale druggists. Added to this is a strong protest from representatives of the Roman Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches who see in further regulations difficulty in obtaining view for sacramental purposes.

Still further in the liquor problem made more intricate with the move for a higher alcoholic standard for beer and the danger of loss of commerce to American vintners because the elimination of the ship's bar.

FAITH QUILTS HIM: LYNN CHINESE ROBBED OF $650

A thief entered the laundry of Wm. Lee at No. 134 Federal street, West Lynn, and removed $650 from a party's trunk. Lee is today weeping at the loss of his money. The Chinese had his money in the trunk in the belief that it was immune from robbery. Having been made from the trunk of the Yang-Tung-Kiang River, and property insured in the Yungtung, according to tradition the arm of the river who stole Lee's money should be hanging from the side of the jar.

DR. FLEISCHER TELLS OF TRUE DEMOCRACY

"Democracy involves a human entity and all human co-operation for its evolution," said Charles Fleischman at the meeting of the Commons in Huntington Chambers Hall. Dr. Fleischman's subject was "Is Democracy Realistic?" and he said further: "Monarchism and pseudo-democracy naturally refuse to regard democracy as a possible type of social organization. They appear to think, and probably sincerely, that the masses are as Carlyle has said, 'their asses' and that the race needs to be ruled by the superior few."

Vital Interest Manifested in Tariff and Panama
 Tolls Questions
 London, March 7.—The markets remain practically uninfluenced by the crisis in the reparations negotiations. Bankers and business men here doubt whether Britain will ever benefit from any form of indemnity, and matter what the country's share eventually turns out to be. There is a profound distaste in business circles generally for talk of further military measures designed to appease the French resentment against Germany for the latter's inability and failure to balance the republic's budget with indemnity payments.

 President Harding's inaugural address was the most important influence on the market during the week, but it failed to produce any definite trend of opinion as to whether the contemplated tariff changes and Pa-harmful to British business interest on the public opinion, the policy for restoration and upbuilding of Amer can trade will be of absorbing intere in English stock market.

Although there was no appreciable move in the market values during th week the general tone was a litt better, thanks principally to the pro spect of easier money conditions an the report that the British Treasur will fund the huge floating debt in stead of making any further attempt to wipe it off the books by taxation.

FIRST SESSION OF CABINET TOMORROW
Harding Includes Vice-President Coolidge in His Call for Initial Meeting
By International News Service.
Washington, March 7.—The first cabinet meeting of the new administration will take place tomorrow morning. The White House issued a call to meet at 11 a. m.

The promise given by President Harding during the campaign, that if elected he would provide a place in the cabinet for the Vice-President, will be fulfilled. Vice-President Coolidge received his invitation along with the regular cabinet members.

Mr. Harding conferred with Secretary of State Hughes and Norman Davis, under-secretary of State, this morning. It is understood that the President will decide upon the date of the special session of Congress before tomorrow, he today informed Senator Underwood, minority leader of the Senate.

Senator Underwood told the President that he felt that the new Congress would make some progress if given a few weeks rest. While the President's intention was not to call until early in April.

Former Senator George S. Chamberlain of Oregon, Democrat, was invited to call on the President today. Chamberlain has been informed that he can become a member of the new Cabinet Board, and if he is believed that his nomination will be made to the Senate in the near future.

The President saw the Senators from Ohio, Mr. Willis, who is a Republican, and Mr. Pomeroy, Democrat. It is understood that they will be named to some appointments.

The executive officers were crowded throughout the forenoon by those who had appointments or wanted to see the President. The President saw the Senators from Ohio, Mr. Willis, who is a Republican, and Mr. Pomeroy, Democrat. It is understood that they will be named to some appointments.

At noon, the President and Mrs. Harding were hosts at luncheon to the women members of the Republican executive committee. This afternoon the President received fifteen members of the Massachusetts Press Association and later went to the Press Club.

Must Lay 'Ghosts' of Debs, Says Harding

By NORMAN HAPGOOD, Editorial Commentator of Boston American.

Washington, March 7.—Now that Mr. Harding is inhabiting the White House he will have to do his best to banish the various ghosts and persuading them to cease wandering about the place. Two of these ghosts are in a general way related. They are both spirits of intolerance.

One is the question of whether we shall keep one of the presidential candidates in prison any longer because he did not happen to agree entirely with Mr. Harding and the other great thinkers about the recent war. The other is the question of keeping central Europe out of raw materials by delaying the economic revival of Russia.

The first act, directly bearing on the Russian situation is the appointment of George Harvey as ambassador to Great Britain. The most important steps toward opening trade with Russia are those being taken, with his usual deviousness, by Lloyd George. The critical negotiations as far have been in London.

The reports sent over by our ambassador to London will affect the relations of the administration about what the facts really are.

Harvey has written a lot about the Russian situation and it has been his stereotyped war-pose stuff, with Gobelin stories about Lenin and Trotsky. Such negotiations of ours there, as far as we are connected with the London negotiations, will find the Russian situation and it has been his stereotyped war-pose stuff, with Gobelin stories about Lenin and Trotsky.

Mr. Hughes, of course, next to the President, is the key to the problem. The only chance of his finding a more creative course than the things that are put out as facts by most of the newspapers and by these governmental bureaus that have long since been turned into propaganda departments is by investigating the same facts with a head that has been in power.

This first gentleman with a head that has been in power, comes into office at a moment when the propaganda news center in Washington, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Riga, Rerik, London, Paris, and Washington is getting the Bolshevik government toppling, facing insurrection everywhere. The news comes in every seven weeks.

Lenin dies once in twenty-three days. He is imprisoned by Trotsky twice a year. Trotsky is imprisoned by him about as often. Present discontent is scheduled for alternate periods of destruction of women, destruction of all factories, complete breakdown of transportation, war, and the collection of Russian-American official documents published under the auspices of the League of Free Nations Associations.

The most thorough personal investigation recently is that of Brille Ford. For an earlier period the investigation was that of Raymond Robinson. For the comment of a distinguished economic expert, a recent investigation by G. D. H. Cole may be recommended.

Mr. Hughes is a worker and he might even run through the files of the New Statesman and the Manchester Guardian for the last five years. Then he will be prepared to take Washington and Heidelberg news with a couple of books of Lenin's.

Mr. Hughes also look a fixed against the lead in trying to protect the Bolshevik Assembly in New York against abuse of their constitutional rights by the Albany Legislature.

About Mr. Daugherty's conception of the right of thought is nothing. The first consideration of Debs will fall to him. The latest news I have heard from the Atlanta Penitentiary is that Debs has been suffering from lambege to such an extent that sometimes he is unable to move. If Debs should die is the best thing on our record will never be forgotten.

In Colonial times there were laws in Virginia. Reporting from that colony all members of an "upstart and turbulent sort of people" commonly called Quakers, who were said in a sweeping way to be guilty of "teaching lies, false doctrines, etc."

The Quakers are to be "imprisoned without bail until they arrange to leave the colony and if they insist on remaining they are to be put to death. A heavy fine is provided for anybody who is guilty of "harboring any Quaker in or near his house, to preach or teach."

JUDGE LANDIS SHOWS MERCY TO BOY THIEF

Milan Police Say Count Was in Move to Put Bolshevism Into America

By International News Service.
Milan, March 7.—Count Michael Karolyi, former President of Hungary, has been involved by letters in a plot to extend Bolshevism into America and western Europe, according to declarations made by the police today.

Karolyi has been ordered arrested from Italy as a result of his connection with a plot to extend Bolshevism into America and western Europe, according to declarations made by the police today.

The police declared documents were seized which had been written by Count Karolyi. These were said to show that Karolyi was connected with Lenin in the Communist movement and was engaged in plans to spread the movement in western Europe and the United States.

One document was written by General Van Buren-Bronck, former commander-in-chief of Bela Kun's Red Hungarian army. This indicated that Karolyi was involved in a plot to overthrow Admiral Miklos Horthy, the Hungarian regent. Karolyi and his family are understood to be on their way to Czechoslovakia.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES THROUGH DEEP SNOWS NO JOKE—Tud' Kent is the proudest man in Ashton, Idaho, since his team of Arctic beauties pulled in ahead of all rivals in the American Dog Derby, having covered the distance in a minute over two hours. Thousands of dollars changed hands on the outcome of the race. (Int.)

CALL THE ANTI-CIGARETTE LEAGUE. QUICK!—Here's a Bulgarian lady and a war refugee enjoying a quiet smoke while she rests from her worries brought on by the war. (Wide World.)

THE PRETTIEST GIRL IN ALL ALGERIA—Of course standards are different in those parts, but it does seem that something could be done about it at that. (Wide World.)

FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE NAVY—If anybody thinks those blue-jackets won't soon have another thing coming, about took place on the Arizona in scorching Panama Bay, between Bliss of the Idaho and Conroy of the Nevada for waterweight crown, Conroy won. (Int.)

LITTLE "MOTHERS" ARE KEPT BUSY IN JAPAN—First among the odd things seen by the American traveling in Mikado land is the number of girls and boys carrying their little brother or sister strapped on them. (Central.)

NEWEST OF THE FADS OF PARIS—It's a ring watch and it has superseded the wrist and ankle watch among the well-to-do grand dames of the French capital. It's only a quarter of an inch in diameter and cost a couple of hundred more than $3.00. (Wide World.)

O' COURSE IT'S A FRENCH MODEL—They do those things better in France, naturally, but this town of brooded satin is one of the masterpieces of Paganini. It's cost? What does cost, anyhow? (U. & U.)

TOO COLD FOR US OVER THERE—Winter does wild things in far off Denmark. Here's a photograph of a lighthouse on the Danish coast after a three day storm. At times the waves washed over the light and the intense cold did the rest. (Int.)

HOME AGAIN AFTER A TRIP TO EUROPE—Here's Mr. A. Profound Gilchrist, and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Perkins. She made her home in Boston once. Where's in a name—a first name anyhow? (Int.)

THESE GERMANS AREN'T WORRYING ABOUT REPARATIONS—Teutonic youngsters who are wisely learning to forget about the part America played in the war against their Vaterland while eating good United States grub furnished by the Quaker society of Berlin, an American society. (Wide World.)

Enormous Forces Contained in Superpower Plan

The recent Secretary of the Interior, John Barton Payne, shortly before his retirement, rendered a report to the President upon the Boston-Washington superpower project which contains elements that are startling.

It has nothing to do with politics, but is an engineering matter. It gives us a slight glimpse of what enormous organizations and forces our children's children are going to deal with when once we wriggle out of the era of destructive competition and confusing individualism into the full day of co-operation.

The project in question, which has been authorized by Congress, is, roughly speaking, a plan to co-ordinate the power-producing agencies of the Eastern region for the uses of industry.

If we stop to think of it, the most striking feature of our industrial life is the vast waste, due to lack of co-operation.

There is no sense in locomotives hauling their own coal when that coal might all be transformed into power at the mine's mouth, and carried by wires (perhaps in time by wireless) to the various railways.

Every thoughtful engineer has been struck, also, by the enormous power running to waste in our rivers and waterfalls.

Reviewing the hydro-electric supply available through interlocking of power developments on the St. Lawrence, Saginaw, Delaware, Susquehanna and Potomac Rivers and the Adirondack power, the report estimates that in average years twelve billion kilowatt hours would be obtained.

"It is of interest at this point," the report said, "to state that in 1930 the total power requirement in the superpower zone, indicated by projected growth curves, will be forty-eight billion kilowatt hours. The superpower system could supply three-fourths of all power needed."

"The prime object of the superpower plan," Mr. Payne said, "is a larger supply of cheaper power. Neither the nation by coal conservation nor the individual consumer by lower prices can profit by the project, however sound in its engineering and economic phases, unless the conditions of financing are sufficiently attractive to warrant the use of the country's financial resources."

All this enables us to glimpse what Business is going to be some day.

For some day we shall get over the foolishness of Ownership. Who would want to Own the coal mines and rivers and other sources of energy so long as we can Use them? If these power sources can be placed at the disposal of all comers, we can go ahead with our work of production and distribution, for a vast load of worry will be taken off the shoulders of industry.

Who wants to Own the Sun?

But we are not going to arrive at idealistic Utopia by way of any red revolution or fancy theories; we shall come to it by the normal processes of social evolution, by continuous experiment, by the constructive labors of the engineer, by the shrewdness of the business man, and by the growth of intelligent citizenship and public spirit among the people.

And the world is, going to be a wonderful place to live in fifty years from now.

Teachers Abused Under Name of "Patriotism"

Some notoriety seeker—who will get no advertising in this column—has rushed into print with the declaration that there are 6,000 disloyal teachers in the public schools, instilling the poison of radicalism into innocent pupils' minds.

The war luncy ran its course in most American minds, and common sense returned at least two years ago. But the cheap ranters who thrust themselves and their noisy ignorance upon public notice, while everybody was in a fever of hysterical excitement, are still here and there endeavoring to regain public attention by cutting silly antics in the abused name of "patriotism."

There are no disloyal teachers in our public schools. It is not disloyal to believe and to advocate changes in our national institutions. The person who believes that such changes should be made in the interest of the people's wellbeing is disloyal to true American ideals if he does not express and urge such changes.

The worst disloyalty of which any man or woman can be guilty is to advocate the suppression of speech and beliefs that differ from those of the majority.

Whoever urges that anyone who believes and peaceably advocates political and economic changes should be deprived of employment, ostracized by the community, subjected to abuse and persecution and even arrested and jailed has exactly the same point of view as George III. had, as Czar Nicholas had, as Kaiser Wilhelm had and as every tyrant and hater of human liberty has always had.

The men and women who are attempting to revive persecution of advanced thinkers are not true Americans. Neither are they true patriots. They are, in fact, doing their ignorant and narrow and un-American worst to destroy the very guarantees of individual liberty of speech and belief which are alike the bright glory and the strong security of the republic.

Deaconess Hospital Should Receive Your Aid

When patients, physicians, nurses and officials unite in praise of a hospital it means the institution is almost ideal for the work it is trying to do. When such an institution appeals for financial aid to meet growing demands and carry on that work, it means that the least the public, which is the real beneficiary, can do is to dig down in its pockets and produce the necessary cash.

Such is the situation in regard to the Deaconess Hospital now asking for funds to extend its facilities and meet the constantly increasing volume of work its popularity among patients and the medical fraternity impose upon it. The position it occupies in the minds of Boston's physicians and surgeons is shown clearly in the statement by Dr. Frank Lahey, printed elsewhere on this page to-day. Read that statement, picture to yourself what it means to the community to have such an institution functioning here and then give—as much as you can afford.

The Sooner the Better

More Truth Than Poetry

"Veni, Vidi—"

By E. E. KISER

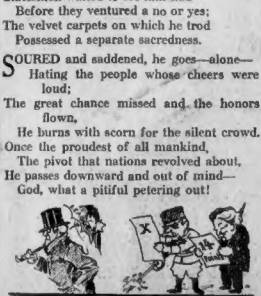

A NATION greeted him when he came
As one for whom it had waited long;
His chance was such as the favored claim;
The line was clear between right and wrong;

He came when the need of a MAN was great,
And even those who had watched with doubt
Were cheered by the challenge he flung at Fate—
But, Lord! what a pitiful pattering out!

WITH every favoring circumstance
That may come to a man who is called to lead,
His shield was hope, and power his lance,
He spoke, and the people gave sober heed.
With words that came in an easy flow,
He promised well, and was gravely heard;
White was black, if he called it so,
The world was taking him at his word.

HIS fame went over the hemispheres,
Kings addressed him with grave respect,
Glad if he spoke to them as his peers;
"Here," they whispered, "is God's elect!"
Statesmen waited to see him nod
Before they ventured a no or yes;
The velvet carpets on which he trod
Possessed a separate sacredness.

SOURD and saddened, he goes—alone—
Hating the people whose cheers were loud;
The great chance missed and the honors flown,
He burns with scorn for the silent crowd.
Once the proudest of all mankind,
The pivot that nations revolved about,
He passes downward and out of mind—
God, what a pitiful pattering out!

Letters to the Editor

Editor Boston American:

The cry has gone forth that the cost of living has dropped 10 per cent. and that wages must be cut 10 per cent. to meet that decrease.

Now, what is left about any such plan when the average cost of living increased 149.4 per cent. over the prices of 1914, while the advance in wages over the same period, amounted to 69.9 per cent.

Just note the comparison and the following table taken from the U. S. Monthly Labor Review; this will prove the above statements. House rents, coal, gas, kerosene were not taken from this table.

Figures shown here refer to Boston only. Food, increase, 107 per cent.; clothing (male), 189 per cent.; clothing (female), 214.9 per cent.; other clothing, 211 per cent.; house rents, 100 per cent.; coal, 113.2 per cent.; gas, 81.2 per cent.; kerosene, 146 per cent.; furniture and furnishings, 232.7 per cent.; miscellaneous, 22.8 per cent.

It is such a comparison of figures that led the building trades of Boston to resist a 10 per cent. reduction in their wages. The present controversy is not a strike for a 60 per cent. increase in wages as a good many people are led to believe.

"If the Master Builders' Association of Boston wishes to stimulate the building industry of this city, why the ultimatum of 90 cents an hour or starve?"

Are the real estate dealers the parties behind the scenes in prolonging this trouble that they may continue to reap in large returns. Glad if he spoke to them as his peers!

He passes downward and out of mind—
God, what a pitiful pattering out!

The Master Builders' Association of Boston, composed of building trades mechanics? In the face of figures presented above, a 149.4 per cent. increase in living compared to the 69.9 per cent. increase in wages, there seems to be only one answer.

YE TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

DORCHESTER, N. Y., March 2.

Dear K. C. B.—As you are a friend to the foreign, dare I submit my heartache to you?

I am an old lady—say, half a century—and I know I ought to remain by the fireside and knit. But I just can't when I hear the music and see the young men and young girls dance and exchange smiles. My old heart responds. I want someone to say: "Dear old lady, will you honor me with a spin around the room?"

If some time I should dare venture into a festive place where there are youthful maidens and gay youths, and you see me—I will be a far corner looking very much frightened—will you walk up to the gallantly in the presence of all the beautiful maidens and say: "My old friend, we must dance as we did in the long ago."

I know you will live the hearts of so old ladies if you will let us know through your column that you would not be ashamed to dance with us.

Thank you so much, Dear K. C. B.

MY DEAR Young Friend,
I, TOO,
AND SAID IT IS.
HAVE REACHED THE SE.
WHEREIN MY heart,
LIKE YOURS,
IS STILL quite young.
AND I AM old.
AND, TOO,
LIKE YOU,
WHEN MUSIC plays,
I WANT to dance.
AND SAY,

IF YOU'LL be there,
IN THAT far corner,
OF THE dancing room,
I'LL COME to you.
AND BOW,
AND SAY,
"AND HERE you are,
"YOU GAY young thing,"
"AND I'VE been searching,
"EVERYWHERE,"
AND THEN we'll dance,
AS IN the days,
OF LONG ago.

Raising your shoulders is bound to make you go at your work as if you intended to accomplish something.

To sit or stand straight helps you to be of more service to your employer and yourself, for you will have more life.

ENGINEERS RADICAL IN MIND ACTION

By The Spectator

AN interview recently published in the newspapers with Hoy and Scott, who is called chief engineer of the Technical School, contains much that illustrates how radicalism, when it is a genuine getting to the root of things, is altogether refreshing and reassuring, and not at all dangerous and unsettling.

The trouble with most radicals is that they are not real root thinkers, but are at all, but petulant, clamorous children.

They have a pain, and not having any idea what is the matter with them, howl.

The engineer is always a radical. So is every honest physician. They try to see what is the cause of the trouble and remove it.

It is because we are not radicals that we blunder so in politics.

Type of Mind

"Politics," says Mr. Scott, "is our natural approach to matters which we don't understand. When we know what we want and exactly how to get it we get it. If we don't know what we want, we vote for something with a superstitious hope that a change—any sort of change—will bring it out of its hiding place."

It takes the engineer type of mind to find out what one wants and go after it.

Some day when we are tired of partisan childishness we will elect an engineer President, and have a Congress full of engineering minds, who will proceed to get us what we want, instead of playing high school games.

Engineers use facts. Political parties, labor unions, churches, reformers generally and those who oppose them, use opinion. They think in terms of party, which means they don't really think at all, much as they feel. They function in war cries, slogans, catchwords, which are mob mania and panic thinking.

The engineer thinks of things, actual, concrete, realities. Hence, his mental product is clean, sweet, sound and wholesome, while the politician's product is always a vast deal of septic stuff.

Sheer Nonsense

Much that concerns and worries us is sheer nonsense to the engineer. Take ownership, for example. "It makes no difference," says our engineer, "who owns the sun; what concerns us vitally is whether we use it properly or not."

No lovers ever quarreled about who owns the moon. Neither does it make a difference who owns the sun. We use only electricity how we use it. Ownership is a myth.

If we once get to using our coal and iron and our industrial and transportation systems to their full capacity, nobody will be fool enough to care whether they are owned or not."

The engineer will come when our cities, schools, street cars, railways, electric generating plants, waterworks, country, State and Federal governments will be handed over to engineers. Instead of to speechmakers, opinion mongers and party bosses.

THE OLD LADY.

WAKE UP AND STAND UP
Straighten up, old man; those shoulders are sagging a bit.

You desire to appear as young as possible; to give the impression that you still have pep and ginger, to show you are far from a has-been.

To be successful, you must stand upright.
If you have been allowing your self to slouch (don't do it like that), but it expresses the effect you produce when you sit or stand in slovenly attitude, you may find it takes considerable effort to square your shoulders.

Raising your shoulders is bound to make you go at your work as if you intended to accomplish something.

To sit or stand straight helps you to be of more service to your employer and yourself, for you will have more life.

DEACONESS HOSPITAL AS DOCTOR SEES IT

By Dr. Frank Lahey

THE Deaconess Hospital comes nearer fulfilling my ideal of what a hospital should be than any other institution with which I have had the opportunity to come in contact. It is a place where I can send patients of all stages of life—financial, social or moral.

The very rich and the very poor get the same care and attention, and as soon as their convalescence permits, mingle in the sun parlor and mix with considerable gaily. I am sure, to both sides. It has always been a source of great satisfaction to me that the Deaconess Hospital has never been, so to speak, fashionable.

Popularity of this sort in a hospital is, to my mind, almost scurrilous. It reeks of distinction, discrimination and segregation. I am happy to say that, thanks to the inclusive rather than exclusive atmosphere which pervades the Deaconess Hospital, no such odium has ever been attached to it.

Softening Effect

It has been very interesting to me to observe the softening effect of the kindly and wholesome atmosphere of the hospital upon the more or less, to use the Army expression, hard-boiled individuals of whom I occasionally have an example in my practice. He may be, for instance, rough, belligerent and perhaps profane. After a short time at the hospital, due to this intangible atmosphere and the wise persuasion, perhaps of a competent head nurse, he becomes a quite tractable, and finally, perhaps, a quite companionable individual.

I do not mean to say that the Deaconess Hospital remodels characters; I do mean, however, that it can assimilate a great variety of individuals, and, so far as their stay in the hospital goes, not only take the very best possible care of them physically, but so influence them by its air of kindness and goodness that regardless of what their station or character is, they absorb and reveal in themselves something of that same air of kindness and goodness.

Needs More Beds

So much for the intangible—now that of the tangible side? A material side is essential inasmuch as the atmosphere of which I speak, while comforting, desirable and capable of accomplishing much good, is quite inadequate for producing actual relief and curing and removal of an ailment. In this tangible purpose certain tangible requirements exist pressing for attention.

The most urgent needs are beds. I think I have, personally, at least three patients waiting for beds in the hospital. The Deaconess Hospital has practically all of the laboratory facilities for arriving at a proper diagnosis in a given case (a state, by the way, which does not exist in any other private hospital in Boston), these laboratories are housed in quarters quite inadequate for their proper and efficient functioning.

With an increase in beds comes automatically the need for more operating rooms. The present operating suite is already more often than not overtaxed as to its capacity to handle the number of surgical operations arising with the present number of beds.

Able Nurses

As to the hospital in general as it exists today, it is excellent. I cannot pass by the opportunity of speaking again of the character of the nurses with which the Deaconess Hospital has always been blessed. I have often said that it almost seems as though they all came from one large family somewhere, so constant is the character of their ability, selflessness and goodness of character. This combination of ability and character comes from an aura, first, from the fact that the nurses are recruited from good sound families with whom the Deaconess Society are in close contact in the various parts of this section of the State and Canada; second, from the fact that there is at the Deaconess Hospital an authority evident in the apparently never irksome but always effective manner in which they perform their duties.

You have created, to my mind, a distinctive institution when you have made for itself a demand which it is at present unable to satisfy. It fills a defect in the community as it exists today, and those of you who are about to approach individuals up to aid in its support may justly be fortified by the knowledge of its worth and the nobility, and the entire unselfishness of its purpose.
